The Legal 500 UK 2023

David is a Special Counsel and co-founder with his wife Ann Thomas, of The International Family Law Group LLP.

David is globally regarded as a leading, highly experienced family law dispute resolution specialist, especially involving an international element or complex assets or issues.

- English solicitor
- Mediator
- Family arbitrator and Member Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (MCIArb)
- Deputy District Judge sitting at the Central Family Court, London
- Australian (NSW) solicitor

- Officer of the Order of the British Empire (OBE)
- Visiting Professor at the University of Law (ULaw)
- Honorary Professor at the University of Leicester

David is regarded as one of the most innovative family lawyers of his generation.

- He was the originator and a creator of family arbitration in England and Wales, now emulated in other countries
- He was instrumental in the 1990s in the creation of the English Family Law Accreditation Scheme
- He was co-founder in 1995 of the world's first multi-disciplinary metropolitan family law practice, combining lawyers, mediators and counsellors, and now much copied around the world
- He was co-founder in 2007 of the world's first law firm dedicated to international families and their children, with many law firms worldwide subsequently setting up specialist international units
- In The Queen's Birthday Honours List in June 2014 David was appointed an Officer of the Order of the British Empire (OBE) for his 'Services to International Family Law'.
- Appointed King's Counsel (Hons) March 2022

After training and qualifying in Southampton, David spent 10 years at City of London law firms. In 1995, he was joint founder of probably the world's first metropolitan practice to combine family lawyers, mediators and counsellors and with an emphasis on a conciliatory and holistic approach. It was subsequently copied in many practices across the world. From 2003 to 2005 he worked in Sydney for a leading family law firm, qualifying as an Australian lawyer. He retains his entitlement to practice as a solicitor in Australia.

In 2007 he co-founded iFLG with his wife Ann Thomas, the world's first law firm specifically dedicated to serving international families and their children and families with international assets.

He has been chair/and or member of very many professional committees and organisations.

In November 2011 he received the prestigious inaugural Jordans 'Family Law Commentator of the Year' award for his outstanding contribution to commentary on family law matters, as voted by family lawyers.

In 2015, David was appointed a Visiting Professor of the University of Law and in 2017 he was appointed Honorary Professor at the University of Leicester.

In 2022 he was appointed an Honorary KC in recognition of his "significant contribution to the development of English law and practice".
